The Fairies In Ireland.

There are many sorts of fairies in Ireland. The trooping clans, the friendliest, wear green jackets, and the solitary fairies wear red. According to McAnally, a peasant once witnessed a battle between them, and when the trooping fairies began to win he was so overjoyed "to see the green above the red" that he gave a loud hurrah. Immediately all vanished from view, and he found himself thrown headlong in the ditch. In Mr. Peats' classification the weird but not unkindly merrows, or sea fairies, come next, then the fairy doctors and witches, who inhabit puddings and pots, bewitch butter, steal milk and the like; the banshees, not always harbingers of death; the leprecaun, or fairy shoemakers, "the only industrious persons among them," for they dance their shoes away in a single night; the pookas, first cousins of the Scotch brownies, who for their sins are obliged to help the housewife with nightly elfin labors; the giants, the ghosts and the satanic race of demon cats, and last, the "kings, queens, princesses, earls and robbers."—Sarah H. Cleghorn in Atlantic.

Malay Weapons.

The national Malay weapon, the creese, is said to have been invented by a Javanese monarch of the fourteenth century. Its varieties are said to exceed a hundred, and there are in Javanese no fewer than fifty names for them. It varies in size from the two foot wavy blade of Sulu down to a mere toothpick. But the peculiarity is that the weapon is never ground, but kept rough and sawlike in edge by scouring with lime juice or the juice of an unripe pineapple, sometimes mixed with arsenic, and it is on this account that creese wounds are so dangerous. Old specimens are so eaten away by this practice that the blade seems formed from a bunch of wires roughly welded up. Such creeses are highly valued, and some of the ancient ones, heirlooms of chiefs, with grotesquely carved and inlaid hilts and sheaths, are almost unpurchasable.

The Little Things That Tell.

A south side mother was dressing for a tea the other afternoon when the front door bell rang. She instructed the maid that if the visitor appeared to be about to make a formal call to say she was not at home. But the mother had not counted on the five-year-old daughter playing in the front yard.

The maid, seeing a woman dressed as if for calling, obeyed instructions.

"She is not at home," the maid said.

"Why, she is, too, Minnie," came a sharp interruption from the child on the lawn. "I saw her lower the curtain just now."

"Perhaps she just came in," the maid responded weakly. "I'll see."

The situation was saved by the fact that the visitor was the mother's sister, whom the maid did not know.—Kansas City Star.

The Antiquity of the Organ.

The organ is the most magnificent and comprehensive of all musical instruments. While the pipes of Pan, aside from that mythical personage, indicate a very ancient use of pipes as a means of producing musical sounds, the "water organ of the ancients" furnishes to the student of organ history the first tangible clew regarding the remote evolution of the instrument. In the second century the magripha, an organ of ten pipes with a crude keyboard, is said to have existed, but accounts of this instrument are involved in much obscurity. It is averred that an organ, the gift of Constantine, was in the possession of King Pepin of France in 757, but Aldhelm, a monk, makes mention of an organ with "gilt pipes" as far back as the year 700.

Punning His Specialty.

"So you have made up your mind to be a specialist—in what line?" was the question put to a struggling doctor by a friend.

"I don't know," was the answer. "I have been considering various advantages in different branches. A chiropodist can generally get a foothold, no matter how bad business is; a manicurist has usually something on hand, and an ear and eye specialist can often get a hearing when there is anything in sight. I haven't dwelt on the possibilities of throat or deutal or hair experts because the two former always look down in the mouth and the latter may get but a bald living or be expected to dye for his patients!"

Siberian Camels.

The native camels of Siberia are a source of constant wonder to travelers. On the Mongolian plateaus, for instance, the thermometer often registers a temperature of 40 degrees below zero, but the camels do not mind it at all, walking about as blithely as if the weather were as balmy as spring. On the other hand, the temperature on the Gold desert in summer is sometimes 140 degrees above zero, and the beasts mind that heat just as little as they do the extreme cold.

An Afterthought.

What Kept Her From It.

"Yes, frequently."

"What has kept you from doing so?"

A KISS

He Was Forgiven Only Because She Was Equally Culpable.

By F. TOWNSEND SMITH.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

The night was dark as Erebus. It rained, the wind blew, and the streets were flooded.

There are two suburban towns—Bloomington and Rosedale—near the city in which I have an office, my residence being in one of these towns. They are five miles apart and were at the time of which I write connected by an execrable road. I live in Rosedale, but on this wild night I was in Bloomington attending a social gathering. I telephoned for a cab, but a reply came over the wire that not a conveyance was to be had.

Turning up my trousers, buttoning my coat and opening my umbrella, I sallied forth, trusting that I might pick up some conveyance to hire.

I found nothing in the way of a vehicle on the streets and, reaching the town limits, left street lamps behind me, pushing on into the darkness. I had walked or waded perhaps half a mile when, seeing something dark ahead of me close by the sidewalk, I approached it curiously. What was my surprise to find a carriage. This I knew rather by feeling than sight. I groped my way to its front, and there were two horses standing, with their heads lowered, patiently enduring the rain. I took my matchbox from my pocket and, drawing forth a match—it was the only one left—struck it. It was extinguished by the wind, but not before I had caught a glimpse of a coachman in waterproofs on the box, leaning back against the body of the carriage fast asleep.

I shouted to him, then shook him. It was some time before I aroused him and then could get nothing out of him as to how he came to be in such a singular position. Indeed, he didn't seem to know. He asked if I was the man who had been beside him awhile ago. I asked him for what point he had been headed when he had dropped off to sleep, and he said Rosedale.

"Very well," I replied, "start up your horses and we'll go there."

I thought it better for me to remain beside him till he became fully awakened, fearing he would fall off the box. I stayed by him till we had gone perhaps a mile, when he seemed in better condition, and, since I was getting drenched, I concluded to get inside the carriage. I directed him to pull up and, dismounting from my perch, found the handle of the door and in another moment was sitting on the rear seat.

There was a curious odor inside which I had smelled before, but could not remember what it was. The window was closed, and I opened it. I thought I would smoke, but remembered that I had used my last match. The jolting of the carriage was such that I braced myself in my corner. Dropping my hand beside me, it lighted on some delicate fabric like silk. I was astonished, but had cause for more astonishment when in another moment, the carriage passing over a hollow place in the road, some one was thrown up against my shoulder.

Instinctively I put out my hands for protection and encountered a woman.

I was seized with a desire to get out of the carriage despite the storm and without waiting for it to stop. I called to the driver, who drew up, and I asked him if he knew who was in his carriage. He seemed still dazed, at any rate so far as memory goes, and said that he didn't know that there was any one inside. Then he said he had started with a lady, but he didn't know whether she had left him or not.

There was silence for a moment, and I could hear the person beside me breathing. I judged that we were midway between Bloomington and Rosedale. We might as well go on as go back. There were few houses on the way, and the people in them were all abed. I told the driver to drive as fast as the road would admit. There was some one in the carriage who might need medical attention.

He whipped up his horses, and the jolting was terrible. It occurred to me that it would awaken any one with a spark of life. To facilitate matters I let down the other window so as to give plenty of air. Within ten minutes I had evidence that my companion was moving voluntarily; then a gasp.

"Where am I? What is it?"

"Don't be frightened," I said.

"Has he gone?"

"Who?"

"The man who got in beside me and held a cloth against my face."

"Oh! That's the explanation, is it?"

"My brooch—it is gone!"

"Anything else missing?"

"I had nothing else with me. But how did you come to be here?"

All this was spoken in a frightened voice, and I knew that she was drawing away from me. I told her what she wished to know. Then she enlightened me still further. She said that while passing out of Bloomington the carriage had stopped, and she heard a man talking with the driver. Then the man got up on the box. She saw the flare of a match, and she smelt tobacco smoke. There was an odor to the smoke that made her feel ill. Presently the carriage stopped and the man who had got up beside the driver descended from the box and got into the carriage. Frightened, she ordered him out, but he forced a cloth over her mouth and nose, and that was all she remembered.

It was all plain to me now. A robber had persuaded the coachman to let him ride, had given him a drugged cigar and had then administered ether or chloroform to the lady inside and robbed her. This explained her asking if I was the man who had been beside her.

The lady on coming to herself was in a much better condition than the coachman. The drug used in his case had undoubtedly been different from that used on her.

"I think you must be a gentleman," she said, "judging from the tone of your voice."

"I return the compliment. Your voice is not only that of a lady, but is very soft and sweet."

"It seems to me that I have heard yours before," she said after a pause.

"I was going to say the same of yours."

"We may be acquainted."

"Quite possibly."

"Who are you?"

By this time it struck me that this was quite an adventure. I was not disposed to spoil it by giving up my identity too soon. I gave a fictitious name.

"I'm disappointed," she said. "I was sure I knew you, and I would have felt so relieved if you had turned out to be one of my friends."

"I assure you of my protection. But you have not given me your own name."

"That is not necessary since I have learned that we are not acquainted. I wish I could see you. Have you no way of making a light?"

"I had only one match, and I have used that. I do not need to see you to know that you are young and beautiful."

"I am young, but a fright. I am pitted with smallpox scars. I suppose I needn't ask you if you are handsome?"

"I am considered the homeliest man in my set."

She had so far recovered her equanimity to give a little laugh.

"Do you live hereabout?" she asked.

"Yes; in Rosedale. I have been to a musicale in Bloomington."

"And I have been to a dance there."

"At the Springers'?"

"Yes. Do you know them?"

"I do. I was invited to their dance, but had previously accepted an invitation at the Deerings'."

"We know the same people, then."

"And you are reassured?"

"Certainly."

"And don't feel any compunction at riding in pitch darkness with a strange gentleman?"

"None whatever, since I am sure he is a gentleman."

"You can trust me. I have recently become engaged."

"Oh, then I'm safe indeed!"

This was said in a tone that made me take notice. It did not seem to me that the lady cared especially about being so safe. I permitted my hand to fall upon hers. She allowed it to remain there.

"You are not the person you claim to be at all," she said. "I didn't recognize you at first, but I have done so since."

"Indeed!"

"And I question if you are one of the goody-goody kind."

"I don't know that I am."

"Are you really engaged?"

"I certainly am."

She leaned very close against me, and I felt her warm breath on my cheek. I was sure that, knowing me, she was intending to play some prank on me, get me to kiss her and tell my fiancee, or something like that. I steeled myself against her blandishments. I was really more interested in discovering who she was than anything else.

"Do you know my fiancee?" I asked.

"Yes, I do."

"Do you admire her?"

"Not especially."

"Will you give me five guesses?"

"Not one."

Just then we passed on a horrible scoop in the road. She was thrown against me, her cheek being pressed against mine. My will power was broken. I twisted my arm around her neck, held her fast and kissed her. She freed herself.

There was an ominous silence.

"Now I suppose you're going to blame me."

No answer.

"It is rather off color for me to take advantage of this peculiar situation to take a kiss."

Was that a sob?

Great heavens! What had I done? I must have mistaken her. My action had been black as the night. I would give five years of my life to recall that kiss.

"Forgive me," I pleaded.

"Never!"

Good gracious! Suppose she told this to my fiancee. Edith might forgive my kissing another, but my taking a kiss under the circumstances she would consider simply brutal.

"Are you going to tell on me?" I asked in a supplicating tone.

"Oh, no; I won't betray you."

We had reached Rosedale. An electric light flashed into the carriage.

"Edith!" I exclaimed in amazement.

"You've kissed another girl," she moaned.

"I've kissed you, sweetheart, not another girl at all."

"I'll never forgive you."

"Then I'll never forgive you."

"Why?" she asked, starting.

"You've kissed another man."

I was even with her, so I received a free pardon.

SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE

Sonoma, June 4, 1910.

H. H. GRANICE, Editor.

McKinlay Good Enough for the People of the Second District

THE editor has been in receipt the past two weeks of letters from personal friends residing outside of the Second Congressional District urging that the INDEX-TRIBUNE support Mr. William Kent of Marin county for Congress in the forthcoming primaries. Personally, we would like to do so, as Mr. Kent is all that he claims to be—a philanthropist and an upright and honorable man. But why endeavor to swap him off for the Hon. Duncan E. McKinlay, who has made one the best Congressmen the District has ever had? Why, we say, thrust McKinlay aside, after he has accomplished so much for the constituents of his district, for a new man who would have no influence in Washington whatever?

During his three terms in the Congress Duncan McKinlay by his tact and statesmanship has always kept in touch with the administration in Washington, and today enjoys the confidence and esteem of President Taft and the chairman of all the influential committees of both the Upper and Lower Houses.

This being the case we submit, why endeavor to supplant him with a new and untried man, who, having no influence in Washington whatever, could do but little for the people of this district while McKinlay has done, can do, and will continue to do so much for them if retained in his present position of usefulness.

THE country is praying for a crop of farmers and in these days of high prices the people look to the tillers of the soil for alleviation from the oppression which the increased cost of living has brought upon us. As a consequence the farmer is rapidly becoming the honored and sought-after status of an increased percentage of our sons and political economists, and university literature gives the calling a high place in our social scheme, which is recruiting much desirable material into the fields of agriculture.

WE are pleased to herald to the outside world that Sonoma has carried her bond election for the modern sewage system and will now be on a footing with her up-to-date sister cities and is a formidable bidder for high-class residences and the home-seeker who wishes to combine modern improvement with natural attractions and beauties. We are now in a position to make a bid for the best of them and undoubtedly will secure a population within the next five years which will astonish the most sanguine booster.

THE indictment against ex-Supervisor I. J. Button, which charged him with presenting a fictitious claim against the county, was dismissed in the Superior Court last Wednesday. There was not one iota of evidence against the accused unless it be that he was a Supervisor, and this Button never denied, although it is a dangerous admission to make in these days of long-haired, howling, hypocritical reformers who some times serve as Grand Jurors and who would allow every thief and thug in the land to go scot free in order to indict one Supervisor on general principles.

A Los Angeles dispatch says that Hiram Johnson's campaign is going with a "zip" down that way, but for all that, it will end in a "fizzle" ere the campaign is over. Seriously, Johnson is a joke.

Superior Court Notes

Mrs. Rachael B. Martin has sued her husband, Mackrel, for a divorce.

McDonough et al. plaintiffs in the attachment suit against A. Nowlin of the Scimitar of Healdsburg, to recover a note for $1,000 on the newspaper plant, were granted a judgment by default in the Superior court on Wednesday, for failure on the part of the defendant to answer the complaint.

A demurrer was filed in the Superior court Thursday in the suit of John Burton against the Northwestern Pacific railroad. This is a suit to recover $5,000 damages sustained on the railroad at Petaluma.

Mrs. Martha Hilmer has petitioned the Superior Court for letters of administration upon the estate of Louis Hilmer, Jr., who in 1899 disappeared from his home in Petaluma and has not been seen or heard of since. Advertisements have been inserted in newspapers and other inquiries made, but no tidings have come. Hence, in the eyes of the law, Hilmer is legally dead.

Not Sisters

Now and again you see two women passing down the street who look like sisters. You are astonished to learn that they are mother and daughter, and you realize that a woman at forty or forty-five ought to be at her finest and fairest. Why isn't it so?

The general health of woman is so intimately associated with the local health of the essentially feminine organs that there can be no red cheeks and round form where there is female weakness.

Women who have suffered from this trouble have found prompt relief and cure in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It gives vigor and vitality to the organs of womanhood. It clears the complexion, brightens the eyes and reddens the cheeks.

No alcohol, or habit-forming drugs is contained in "Favorite Prescription." Any sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. Every letter is held as sacredly confidential, and answered in a plain envelope. Address: World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N.Y.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a costitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

SEWER BONDS GET LARGE MAJORITY.

Only Fifteen Votes Against the Proposition.

The special election held here last Saturday to vote bonds to the amount of $20,000 for a septic tank sewer system, resulted in a sweeping victory for the bonds. Out of a total of 200 votes cast 185 favored the bonds while 15 voted against the proposition.

As stated in these columns previous to the election there was practically no opposition to the bonds and the result, while it may have surprised some of our people, was not unexpected by a majority of them.

At no time before or since the election can a single voter be found who was opposed to the sewer proposition, and just whom the fifteen were who stamped "no" on their ballots will never be known. It may be possible that many if not all the "noes" were voted by mistake, for not one voter can be found in town today who opposed the bond issue.

Now that the City Trustees have been authorized to issue the bonds they will be advertised for sale and after their disposal work on the sewer will be commenced and rushed through to completion this summer.

Committed Suicide

Ernest Bassanessa, who was taken into custody one day last week while wandering aimlessly around in the vicinity of Melitta, committed suicide last Monday. The poor fellow, after been declared demented by a lunacy commission, was committed to the Ukiah Asylum, and a few days later ended his earthly troubles by taking his own life. The suicide leaves a widow who is herself nearly crazed with grief over her misfortunes. First the sum of $8,000, the savings of a life time, was stolen from the couple shortly after their arrival in this country from Italy, and this so preyed on the mind of the husband that his reason gave way and he widowed the wife by tak ing his own life.

THE GOLDEN BEAR CREDIT TO STUDENTS

The High School Annual a Work of Art and a Literary Gem.

The Golden Bear, edited and published annually by the students of the Sonoma Union High School, is now in the book-binders hands and will be ready for distribution this week.

It is published in booklet form and consists of 36 pages of short stories, poems, editorials, a josh and athletic department. There are also a number of pages devoted to local advertisements, which show a liberal patronage on the part of our townspeople.

In their annual of this year the students do themselves proud. The short stories by Majorie Buchan, '11, Raymond Solomonson, '13 Harry Lulgens, '12, are well written and very interesting. An article contributed by Otto Dresel, '10, "Government Ownership of Public Utilities," is well constructed and shows much thought on the part of the youthful student on a subject that has been so freely discussed on the platform and in the columns of the newspapers the past few years.

The "Class History," by Edna Cooper, 10' and "Class Prophey," by Majorie Buchan, are both meritorious productions.

The editorials and josh columns are well edited and the half-tones are a work of art. The staff of "The Golden Bear" is as follows: Emilie Poppe, editor-in-chief; Raymond Cooper, manager; Frederick Duhring, assistant manager; associate editors, Harold Waltz, Minnie Smith, Gertrude Calderwood, Harry Lutgens, Lydia Regusci.

The High School is now on the accredited list and this has been a great encouragement to both teachers and students, as is evidenced by "The Golden Bear" for 1910.

Improving its Water System.

The Sonoma City Water Works Co., owned by Mrs. L. V. Emparan and Mrs. J. H. Cutter, daughters of the late Gen. Vallejo, is installing a 50,000-gallon tank on the hill back of the Vallejo home. It will have an elevation of twenty-eight feet above the present reservoir and will be roofed in. The elevation of the tank will give ample pressure to consumers and will add much to the efficiency of its water service. The work of installing the tank will be completed about June 15th.

Runaway Accident

On last Sunday afternoon what might have resulted in a serious runaway accident occurred near El Verano.

Mr. Kinney of the metropolis, accompanied by three young lady friends, was enjoying a buggy ride around the valley. While rounding a sharp curve in the road near El Verano the vehicle skidded and all were thrown to the ground.

Dr. Leix was summoned and attended to the injured parties, who were painfully but not seriously hurt. The horse ran away but was captured shortly after.

It does not upset the entire system, causing loss of appetite, great inconvenience and distress, but it acts like nature acts and you can take it any time during the day or night. It is one of the best remedies of the great American Druggists Syndicate of 12,000 druggists, and entirely unlike any other laxative. In fact it is next to a reputable physician's prescription it is the best laxative known.

A RESOURCEFUL THIEF ROBS MAN.

Throws a Piece of Canvas Over Sleeping Man, Relieves Him of His Purse and Makes Good His Get Away

Joe Le Roy, temporarily occupying a tent at near Boyes and who hails from San Francisco, is in the toils of the law. He was arrested Monday evening by Deputy Sheriff Joe Ryan on a warrant sworn out by A. Nevraumont, who charged Le Roy with robbery.

It appears that during the terrible heat last Monday Mr. Nevraumont lay down under the cool, inviting shade of a near-by oak tree and was soon in the land of nod. Le Roy, it is charged, stealthily approached the slumbering man and after throwing a large piece of canvas over him, proceeded to go through his pockets, securing a purse containing $35 in coin. Enveloped in the folds of the canvas Mr. Nevraumont was powerless to help himself. After going through his victim's pockets the adroit thief attempted to make good his escape without detection. In this he was thwarted by the frantic struggles of Mr. Nevraumont, who managed to get clear of the piece of canvas just in time to recognize the defendant as he was running away.

Le Roy, upon being confronted by Mr. Nevraumont, strenuously denied that he was the man, but unfortunately for the accused the robbery was witnessed by another party and the warrant and arrest followed.

Le Roy was placed in jail here Monday night by the arresting officer, pending his preliminary examination.

The L. L. Lewis Water System

At last Wednesday's meeting of the City Trustees an ordinance was passed, which will be found elsewhere in these columns, granting L. L. Lewis the privilege of using the public streets and thoroughfares for his water system, which will enter the town at the lower end of Napa street. The pipe line which has been rapidly building the past few weeks is now completed, in so far as excavating is concerned, almost to the town limits. The pipe is already being laid and it is expected to have the system in operation early next month. The line will extend a distance of three or four miles from the Yulupa ranch, where the reservoir is located, via. El Verano and Riverside avenue across Sonoma creek at the foot of Napa street and from thence directly into town.

He had come over from France and had just been asked to give his views on the ancient game of golf. With much gesticulation he did so.

"Ah," he said, "your game of golf! Yees, I know him. You put on ze tunic so red as ze Ingleesh rosbif underneath done. You strap your sack of sticks on ze back of a boy twice so small as ze bag.

"He scrape a mud pudding to make balance a leetle white ball. He make three bad tries to balance him, then very angry you call aloud, 'Feur!' Then you what you call address ze ball, and, ma foi, your address is sometimes of language to make afraid.

"You strike, and ze ball find himself in ze long grass.

"You call aloud for ze nib lunger stick and beat ze ground till your partner say, 'Ho, chuck it!' You say— But, my friend, I excuse myself to repeat what you say.

"Ah, my friend, you are a great nation, but your golf game gives me what you call ze pip!"—Pearson's Weekly.

Willing to Chance It.

Here the lecturer threw upon the screen the portrait of a man well known in the financial world, says the Chicago Tribune.

"This," he said, "is one of the great captains of finance. I do not need to mention his name. His face is familiar to all of you. Look at his corrugated brow, the furrows in his cheeks, the pouches under his eyes, the deep lines about his mouth. That face, my friends, bears the unmistakable and ineffaceable stamp of care. Anxiety has marked it indelibly. It shows the traces of sleepless nights, weary days and bitterly fought campaigns, with millions of dollars at stake. Success brings such a man no happiness. Look at him! How many of you, my friends, would change places with him? How many of you would be willing to take his wealth if compelled to assume the terrible burden of responsibility that goes with it?"

His hearers rose en masse.

"I would!" they shouted in unison.

His Unfortunate Investment.

"It's astonishing," the old settler in the little town was saying, "how real estate has advanced in this town since I came here. The corner lot this building is on, for instance, sold once for $450."

"What is it worth now?" asked the stranger.

"Five thousand."

"Well, you had a chance to get rich by investing in land yourself. I suppose you bought some real estate?"

"Yes; I bought one lot—just one."

"That has increased in value, hasn't it?"

"Yes; over 600 per cent."

"That was a good investment."

"Not so awfully good, mister," said the old settler gloomily. "I paid $10 for it, and it's worth $75 now, but it's in the cemetery. The way I figure it I've lost a heap of money by not dying forty years ago."—Youth's Companion.

Punishment In Persia.

Among the Persians the usual mode of punishment is the bastinado, from which men of the highest rank are not exempt. It is inflicted with very great severity, frequently so as to render the sufferer almost a cripple for life. The victim is thrown upon his face, and each foot is passed through a loop of strong cord attached to a pole, which is raised horizontally by men, who, twisting it round, tighten the ropes and render the feet immovable. Two executioners then strike the sole alternately with switches of the pomegranate tree well steeped in water to render them supple. A store of these switches is generally ready for use in the pond which adjoins the courtyards of the houses of the great. The punishment frequently lasts for an hour or until the unfortunate victim faints from pain.

Heckling Humor.

A parliamentary candidate was holding a meeting in Auld Reekie at which the heckler was much in evidence, and the embarrassed candidate failed to give a single answer which was judged to be satisfactory by the audience. Toward the end of the meeting an elector rose and quietly asked, "Sir, would you tell us what might be the name your second initial stands for?" The unfortunate candidate, greatly puzzled at the purport of the question, asked in what way the information could interest the audience. "In this way," explained the interrogator—"we should be able to see if you could answer one question!"—London Tatler.

An Easy Cure.

A correspondent for a local paper writes that his sister sent him four fun lines which are guaranteed to cure any case of strenuosity in the family. The lines are to be repeated three times heartily in the face of any domestic difficulty. Here they are:

The dog is in the pantry;
The cat is in the lake;
The cow is in the hammock.
What difference does it make?
—Nautilus.

More Interesting.

"Were you interested in that account of the Washington man who suddenly disappeared?"

"Well, I'd have been more interested in an account of a man who gradually disappeared."

Two Signs.

"To snuff a candle out accidentally is a sign of marriage."

"Yes, and to turn down a lamp intentionally is a sign of courtship."

One thorn of experience is worth a whole wilderness of warning.—Lowell.
